Reference list (consistent in style e.g. Harvard style)

If the Harvard system is followed, in the text, references should be indicated by giving the author's name and year of publication (with page and illustration references). For example:

... Clark (2002, 23) was of the opinion that ... It is probably during this phase that we see the first construction of monuments in the region, in the form of massive standing stones, stone rows and long mounds (Scarre 2011, 68–102; 2015)...

The references should be listed in full at the end of the paper. Individual items should be separated by clear lines, with the authors' and any editors' names capitalized, and the year of publication followed by a colon. The following examples of specific publication types should be used as guidelines:

a) Journal article

GARROW, D., GOSDEN, C., HILL, J.D. and RAMSEY, C.B. 2009: Dating Celtic art: a major radiocarbon dating programme of Iron Age and Early Roman metalwork in Britain. Archaeological Journal 166, 79–123.

b) Book

THOMAS, J. 2013: The Birth of Neolithic Britain (Oxford).

c) Book chapter:

BUCKBERRY, J.L. 2007: On sacred ground: social identity and churchyard burial in Lincolnshire and Yorkshire, c.700–1100 AD. In WILLIAMS, H. and SEMPLE, S. (eds.), Early Medieval Mortuary Practices (Oxford, Anglo-Saxon Studies in Archaeology and History 14), 120–32.
